COME SOUTH TO SAVE ON YOUR COAL BILLS

IS CONSERVATION TAMPA IS AF[illegible]

Dickie Says Coal Shortage Ought to Send Tourists Down South To Keep Warm

Reports have reached the Tribune from persons who formerly lived in St. Cloud, but who have gone north this summer and have not yet returned, that coal is very short in many sections, in fact we have reports that inspectors are on the job to see that no persons receive more than a certain allowance of fuel at a time. To people in far-away lands that are confronted with these conditions we say: "Come to St. Cloud, where little fuel is needed and where pine wood takes the place of fires in a residence or office. Reviewing this condition, the Tampa Times prints the following reference to the coal situation:

Another reason why Florida should have a big tourist season was advanced this morning by Secretary L. P. Dickie of the Tampa Board of Trade. Mr. Dickie has just returned from a trip to Chicago where he attended a convention of the National Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries, and also made a visit to his old home at Bunker Hill, Ill. The new factor, which Mr. Dickie mentions for whatever it may be worth, is the coal shortage.

"There is a shortage of coal in many places," he says, "and it will probably become more pronounced. Without coal to keep their homes warm, there will be no other course to take than to come to Florida."

At Bunker Hill, Mr. Dickie says, the electric light plant is now shut down at 11 o'clock in order to save coal. A small mine that has been operated for years there, supplying enough coal for the local trade, was closed while he was there—not because there was no demand for coal, but because the miners employed had gone to other places, where they could work in larger mines, better equipped, and make more money. The owners of small mines, unable to charge more than the government limit, and not able to pay higher salaries to hold their workers, are thus forced to shut down.

Discussing the outlook for winter visitors here this year, Mr. Dickie says that he thinks the state will be full of them. "No place that I visited was any more stirred up about the war than Tampa," he said, "and throughout the Middle West it is apparent they have had good crops and good money, and will probably be free to spend it during the coming winter by coming south."

The convention of secretaries at Chicago which Mr. Dickie attended, was the largest of its kind yet held, with over three hundred in attendance. A great many big speakers were on the program, speaking on food conservation and production. A good part of the program was devoted to the discussion of organization work and work concerning the government program.

Government To Make Food Control Effective; Food Pledge Campaign Week Bringing Results

(By C. A. Tutewiler.)

Jacksonville, Oct. 31.—The United States government tomorrow answers one of the few arguments of some housewives against home food conservation by making food conservation compulsory on manufacturers, wholesalers, jobbers and many retailers of the country's basic food products.

The plan becomes effective tomorrow under presidential order.

Coming at the height of the Food Pledge Week campaign, it is considered by the Food Administeration a conclusive answer to the housewives who have said:

"Why should I sign the food pledge to conserve food in my home when the manufacturers are wasting it, speculators are boosting its prices and anti Americans are hoarding it in enormous quantities?"

There will be no more of that. All the great manufacturers and wholesalers who have been accused of controlling the market are today forbidden to do business except under government license.

This includes those engaged in "the import, manufacture, storage and distribution" of the fundamental foodstuffs named.

It embraces meat packers, cold storage warehousemen, millers, canners, elevators, grain dealers and retailers doing a business of more than $100,000 a year.

These dealers have been warned that any one of them who is found manipulating or speculating in these foods, who hoards them, who extorts unreasonable profits, or who indulges in discriminatory practices in handling them, will be subject to a fine of $5,000 or two years in prison or both. Hoarded food will be seized by the government.

Conspiracy on the part of dealers to defeat the purposes of the food law is punishable by $10,000 fine or two years imprisonment, or both.

The government will watch these dealers and consider them as patriotically living up to the provisions of the license until by their own acts they prove that the confidence is misplaced. Such cases will be dealt with summarily.

No firm in this list can do business without a government license after today. And under the license, each person or firm licensed must report what has been going on in his business since the last report. A special legal department has been organized in the Food Administration to enforce these regulations.

Dealers affected are those handling or packing in a large way wheat, wheat flour, rye or rye flour, barley or barley flour, oats, oatmeal or rolled oats, corn, corn grits, cornmeal, hominy, corn flour or starch from corn, oil, corn syrup or glucose, rice or rice flour, dried beans, pea seed or dried peas, cottonseed, cottonseed oil, cottonseed cake or cottonseed meal, peanut oil or meal, soy bean oil or meal, palm or copra oil, oleomargarine, lard, lard substitutes, oleo oils or cooking fats, milk, butter or cheese, condensed, powdered or evaporated milk, fresh, canned or cured beef, pork or mutton, poultry or eggs, fresh or frozen fish, fresh fruits or vegetables, canned peas, tomatoes, corn, salmon or sardines, dried prunes, apples, peaches or raisins, sugar, syrups or molasses.

This, the Food Pledge Week campaigners pointed out, puts the housewife, the packer and the dealer in food on a par, in the saving campaign. With needed war foods, meat, wheat, fats and sugar. The packers and dealers have this distinction the housewives are being asked to conserve voluntarily the accepted restrictions aimed to adjust exorbitant prices at the source.

Replying to further criticisms that leaving the retailer doing less than $100,000 worth of business a year unlicensed doesn't help the high retail price situation much, a Food Administration official said today:

"We were not authorized by Congress to license retailers doing less than $100,000 a year business. However, the control of retail prices really is in the hands of the housewives. We now control the basic products up to the small retailer's door. We will tell the public what price the retailer pays for those products. Then it will be up to the buying housewives to see that no retailer sells to them for more than a fair margin of profit.

"But," added the official, "we feel sure that no housewife will use any retailer's unpatriotic attempt at profiteering as a reason for not doing her bit towards war fund conservation."

SHAH AHEAD OF KAISER

One would have imagined that the Kaiser had a pretty fair run of titles until discovering that the Shah of Persia, besides being "king of kings," was also "the rose of delight," "the branch of honor," and "the mirror of virtue."

Wisconsin Man Praises Wonder City and Surrounding Country as "Garden of Eden"

Says Lake Here is the Finest He Ever Saw and Was Surprised to Find Gardens So Plentiful When He Left Snow Behind

Comrade W. H. Croft, who came here a few days ago from Grant county, Wisconsin, found many things to surprise him, although he had read of the contented life that was being enjoyed by the veterans who had come to the land of sunshine before him. To express his sentiments:

"This is a veritable Garden of Eden! I never believed that such fine truck farms could exist at this time of year anywhere in the United States. I belonged to the 25th Wisconsin, Comrades in the saddle, and want all the comrades who read the Tribune to know what they are missing. Just think of going in your shirt sleeves on November 1, and to be walking in those beautiful orange groves and banana groves that abound in the St. Cloud section. Well, you can't do that in Wisconsin this time of year, nor can you walk amid oranges and bananas at any time up there.

"I saw some of the finest potatoes around this city that I have ever seen and to think that they are now blooming! Why, in Wisconsin there is not a ghost of a show for a potato to be growing a green top this time of the year.

"And the lake—whatever you call it—(East Tohopekaliga), well, it is one of the most beautiful in the country. The pleasures that can be enjoyed there all the year in fishing and boating and bathing cannot be equalled. I certainly have been more than pleased with what I have found here, and I want my friends back home to know about it."

Comrade Croft has taken up his residence at the home of C. C. Cottrell on Virginia avenue and Seventh street and will remain here for the winter, and of course by spring time he will be so well pleased that he will never want to leave.

Tribune's Visit to Lands of Snow Brings Homeseekers; Will Remain

Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Fox, of New Haven, Conn., arrived in St. Cloud on Wednesday of last week and expect to remain in the city for the winter. They came here as the result of receiving the St. Cloud Tribune free through the courtesy of the county commissioners, who are at present paying for several hundred copies each week for this purpose. Mr. and Mrs. Fox received only two copies of the Tribune before they decided to leave the land where it had already begun to blow and snow for a long winter, and come and investigate personally the reputed Wonder City. Now that they have been here a few days they are so well pleased with the climate, the location and the hustle and bustle of the New St. Cloud that has arisen since the fire that they have taken a cottage on Minnesota avenue and Fourteenth street, and will remain with us at least for the winter.

There are many other people who have arrived recently that have been brought here solely by the advertising of the Tribune, and some of these persons have promised us stories about their impressions of the city for the first visit, which we expect to publish at some later date.

ARE WE EATING LESS?

Statistics prepared by the Department of Agriculture are interpreted as showing that "the war and high food prices have caused Americans to be more economical in the consumption of foodstuffs." Is it not possible, also, that more rational notions of diet are contributing largely to that end? Is the average American breakfast as heavy as it used to be?

INCREASED POSTAGE IS EFFECTIVE NOV. 2

[illegible] LETTERS MUST BEAR THREE CENTS

Post Cards and Drop Letters Are Increased to Two Cents Per Ounce or Fraction.

Postmaster J. J. Johnston has received from the office of the third assistant postmaster-general the following instructions, prepared for the press, in regard to the increase in postal rates, which becomes effective November 2. These new rates, as provided by the new war revenue bill, consist of an increase of one cent in the postage of letters and other first class matter, making three cents for each ounce or fraction thereof. The rate on drop letters will be two cents an ounce or fraction thereof. Postcards and private mailing cards will also be subject to two cents each.

The instructions, as issued by the postoffice department, are as follows:

"It is of the utmost importance that every patron of the postoffice service becomes familiar with the increased rates of postage provided for letters, postals and postcards by the War Revenue Act, as set forth in Order No. 755 of October 3, 1917, amending sections 399, 400 and 402, P. L. & R., appearing on page 31 of the October supplement to the Postal Guide. Failure to prepay the proper amount of postage will delay the dispatch and delivery of mail, cause confusion, annoyance and inconvenience and impose upon the postal service unnecessary labor and expense.

"The following features should be particularly emphasized:

"The increased rates become effective November 2, 1917.

"Letters and other first class matter (except drop letters and postal and post cards) will be subject to postage at the rate of three cents for each ounce or fraction thereof, which should be fully prepaid. If less than three cents is prepaid on a letter, or other first class matter, it shall be returned to the sender, if known, for the deficient postage. If the sender is not known, it shall, if prepaid at least two cents, be rated with the deficient postage and dispatched to its destination for collection of the amount due upon its delivery to the addressee. Letters and other first class mail prepaid less than two cents shall be treated as prescribed by Sec. 545, P. L. & R.

Drop Letters Two Cents Per Ounce

"The rate on drop letters on and after November 2, 1917, will be two cents an ounce or fraction thereof. This applies to all letters mailed for delivery within the postal district of the postoffice where deposited, including delivery by the city, rural or other carriers of such office. The two cent drop letter rate also applies to offices which have no free delivery service.

Post Cards Two Cents

"All post cards, whether they bear written meassages or are entirely in print, must be prepaid two cents each, and, therefore, the one cent postal card must have one cent postage stamps affixed to them in addition to the one cent impressed on such cards.

"Post cards or private mailing cards bearing written messages will also be subject to two cent postaget each.

"The rate of postage is not affected on printed cards bearing the words 'post cards' or private mailing cards,' which do not bear any written additions authorized on third class matter by the provisions of Sec. 453 Postal Laws and Regulations.

Land Sales in St. Cloud Continues Active Showing Great Development

Whenever people are coming every day to St. Cloud and buying places to make their homes, there is always an air of prosperity abounding in every store in the city, and presently some old-timer catches the spirit of development and buys for the purpose of building or making a truck farm, and the good work goes on and on indefinitely.

St. Cloud has been enjoying a healthy growth for years—never a real boom—always a substantial growth, and just now the many new faces seen on our streets and the many real estate transfers that are taking place, renews the pace for a greater city, that only slacks up for a few weeks during the summer months. This week there has been some good sales reported, and others are under way which will cause several more new homes to be added to our list before the season is far gone.

The home of Henry Geer, located on Massachusetts avenue, lots 5 and 6, block 102, to Russell W. Smith.

Home of Mrs. McGill, located on Florida avenue, lots 1 and 2, block 302, to C. Reynolds.

Home of Tilden Graham, located on Tennessee avenue, on lots 20 and 21, block 315, to Chas. Sherwood.

Ten-acre tracts Nos. 87 and 90, in Section 11-26-30, to Isaac Wisterman, who will develop at once, having planned to plant a crop of potatoes and bring the place to a stateof cultivation where it will be one of the best truck farms in this section.

Fifteen-acre tracts Nos. 2 and 15, in Section 14-27-30 and tract No. 70 in Section 28-26-30, to John Bailey. Mr. Bailey has bought many small tracts around this section, and demonstrates that he believes in the future of this section by making more purchases.

More Specimens Added to Display of Home Products

James M. Johnston, manager of the St. Cloud Development Co., continues to receive fine specimens from the gardens and truck farms in and around St. Cloud, and is making the display of home products maintained at the office of the company one ofthe finest ever seen here. This week the following report was received from Mr. Johnston:

L. E. Firkins, former owner ofthe New York Meat Market, presented two nice banana plants from his farm west of the city.

W. E. Cook, of Missouri avenue and Eighth street, presented a large bunch of peanuts grown in his garden. Mr. Cook has demonstrated to the people of St. Cloud that peanuts could be made a profitable crop in this part offlie state.

J. W. Smith, Kentucky avenue and Seventh street, presented a nice bunch of sugar cane growing in a box.

ORANGES Sealdsweet GRAPEFRUIT

Your Higher Cost of Growing Fruit and Truck

This year the growers of Florida will find that their producing costs have been increased. Labor is scarce and must be paid high wages, fertilizer costs more, crates are more expensive.

These higher producing costs are not confined to Florida but prevail all over the United States, as well as abroad. There was no escaping them when the whole world became involved in the war for the "safety of democracy."

There is compensation in the fact that if properly marketed the products of farm, garden and grove may be sold for prices enough higher than previously have been secured to cover at least the increased producing costs.

But this can not be hoped for from shipments sent to glutted markets or offered to the consuming public without the identifying marks of a selling agency with which it is acquainted and in which it has confidence. A public paying higher prices for its goods demands assurance of their quality.

The Florida Citrus Exchange can market your products so as to obtain maximum prices for these. It has the confidence of the fruit and produce trade and its name and trade-marks are looked to as their protection by hundreds of thousands of housewives. It has its own dependable men in every important market center and, keeping in touch with them by wire, is able to avoid gluts. It is conducted with due regard alike for economy and efficiency, and returns growers every cent it nets for their produce.

For further information consult the manager of the Exchange packing house or sub-Exchange nearest you or write the business manager of the Florida Citrus Exchange at Tampa, Florida.

Experience Shows Commission Manager Plan Is the Right One

(By Richard S. Childs, Secretary of National Short Ballot Association).

The commission-manager plan is now five years old. In several cities it has survived elections without causing any earthquakes in the city halls. From all the cities some specific and circumstantial reports of economies effected, taxes reduced, new functions undertaken, politics eliminated and popular approval made manifest. Some of the older cities now have reached that most interesting stage where they present the fruit of their sowing in most impressive fashion. Dayton, especially, is beginning to reveal what good government really means. After you have got the politicians out of the city hall, after government ceases to mean a parcel [illegible] have developed a public agency sensitive to the desires of the electorate and at the same time efficient and clean in administration; then what? The city having obtained at last a first class automobile instead of a stage coach, to where shall we drive? Does it mean merely a lower tax rate. Dayton is just beginning to answer that question by exhibiting a government which delights in undertaking social service. Here is a city government which is beginning to undertake the responsibility of looking after the people of the city. It frankly and definitely purposes to abolish private charity within the city by gradually taking over every tested necessary philanthropy. It tries to do something about the cost of living. It reduces infant mortality forty per cent. It undertakes to restore human derelicts. It develops wholesome occupation for children in little farm gardens. It abandons the laissez faire policy and assumes responsibility for trying to make Dayton a nice place to live in. German cities look after their citizens in this way to conserve the national sinew. The job holders in a typic American city hall have no such vision. Dayton seems likely to show how much in human terms rather than in financial statistics, good government means.

Choose Managers From Out of Town

The other commission-manager cities are still busy cleaning house, getting their finances in order, catching up with their public works problems, repairing old neglect. When they get this done, what will they do? Gild the dome on the city hall? Or will they call in the social worker and follow up their surveys of the administration by surveys of the people in the alleys? We know at least that Dayton, the pioneer city, is leading in the right direction, a fact which is due. I understand, largely to Dr Garlind, head of the department of public welfare, under Manager Waite.

(Make sense out of this, I cant'—G

In a year and a half fifteen more cities have joinedthe list of commission-manager cities. In this same period fifteen cities adopted the commission plan and three others gave it up. In fact the commission plan practically stopped spreading wherethe new plan is available and the torch has been passed on to the new plan.

The new cities, like the old, have chosen their managers in most cases from out of town. There has been one more case of transfer of managers, i. e., Manager Carr of Cadillac, who was hired at increase of salary by Niagara Falls. There are several "lame ducks," managers who for one reason or another are managers no longer. Two or three of the men have unmistakably failed on their jobs.

It is still too early to tell what the average tenure of the managers is likely to be, but there is nothing to indicate that it is likely to be short or that the cities will be disposed to change the managers frequently. No manager, I think has yet lost his job as the direct or indirect result of a popular election in the town, but that may be largely due to the fact that most of the commissions have been re-elected.

Business men continue to take to the commission-manager plan like ducks to water. The old charters were subjects for lawyers to discuss. Here is something business men understand. One cannot imagine the rotary clubs all over the country discussing a charter of any other type than this.

Business Men Like the Plan.

There continues to be a tendency to make heroes of the managers. It is so much easier for the public to get a picture in their minds of one manager than of five commissioners. This tendency has its dangers. One manager, for instance, gets himself quoted at length in the daily papers nearly every day on some topic or other. Publicity is a good thing. The more a municipal government gets itself talked about, the better. But this manager would less likely be an issue in the next election if he would get the mayor to assume the glory—and the responsibility.

The city managers have now held their third annual convention. Of course the conventions are still small affairs but they are not as good as they ought to be. At present certain managers each take a subject, and with the aid of midnight oil and some reference books prepare an essay, which if not actually amateurish, cannot honestly be claimed to be an authoritative contribution to the subject, for the managers are not specialists and do not claim to be. The managers, however, can command the time and attention of the most eminent specialists in the country, and if they wish to discuss the problems of marketing municipal bonds, why waste time listening to Manager So-and-So's efforts on that subject, when they can get a good Wall Street financier, who handles bonds for hundreds of cities? The discussion thatresults when experts and the theorists clash with the practical managers, who are face to face with immediate problems [illegible] municipal reference literature, of the most important sort, and the proceedings of the city managers' conventions would become important, whereas now they are merely interesting. The governors' conference has developed the same idea that no one is good enough to address them but another governor, with the result that the governors' conference has gone to seed.

The best feature of the managers' conference is the calling of the roll of cities, when the managers rise in turn and report the achievements of the past year. To a modest manager the procedure may possibly be painful, but it is a good thing for the managers and undoubtedly does much to determine the spirit of services which inspires the new profession.

Takes Time to Test Scheme.

Outspoken and organized hostilities to the commission-manager plan may always be expected to survive for a few years in every city, at least until there has been more than one election. In some cases the opposition controls newspapers. A reasonable amount of such opposition is a good thing, for it makes municipal officers care to see that everything is properly and carefully explained to the public.

Dayton has a delightful sheet known as the Municipal Searchlight, devoted exclusively to throwing mud at the government of Dayton. It says that Dayton is afflicted with expertitis, a municipal disease, which I, for one, fondly hope will prove contagious. This ill-tempered little publication, with its slender store of specifications and its enormous store of Billingsgate, furnishes to any open-minded man indisputable proof that the opposition in Dayton is terribly hard up for ammunition.

In Phoenix, Arizona, the first city manager lost his job for reasons which seem on the whole creditable to him, and it seemed logical to expect that his successor would be a man more amenable to political control. It has not worked out that way, however. The new manager has achieved a list of reforms which demonstrate high ability.

At Niagara Falls, before the plan went into effect the newspapers and the local political lights talked about the city managership as if it were a fat job for some local man. But the commission was true to the traditions of the plan and engaged a non-resident expert, Manager Carr, of Cadillac.

In Newburgh a rather weak commission engaged a high class man from Cleveland. There was a legal tangle in the charter which prevented the new manager from reorganizing the city employes, and the commission removed him after he had been in office only five months, before he really got going. There was considerable indignation among the citizens and a demand for a statement of the charges. No charges were forthcoming and the commission gave no explanation. Even the manager was only able to obtain trivial excuses and justification. It was said that there had been a stormy private meeting in the councils of the local machine a short time previous because the manager "had done nothing for the Republican party." At any rate it was evident that the commission had another man in mind, a local business man and unsuccessful candidate in the election a few months previous, whom it promptly appointed. The new manager seems to be getting more action, but I think Newburgh is one of the cities to watch.

Ashtabula Experience.

I have saved Ashtabula for the last—Ashtabula with the unique city charter that is the ultimate ideal, with its council elected by the Hare plan of proportionate representation. At the first election, this method of election caused an Italian saloon keeper named Nick Corrado, to forge ahead of a young attorney named Rinto. Professor Hatton, who studied the election on the spot, commented that the election of Rinto would have improved the council but the election of Corrado made it more representative. The commission, after quarrelling over the appointment of a manager, selected one of its own number who needed a job, although he had no particular training for this one. He undertook at the [illegible]

WHAT WILL RUSSIA DO?

CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL IS BACK FROM SLAV REPUBLIC WITH STARTLING REVELATIONS.

"What the new Russian Republic does, whether it continues in the war or makes a separate peace with Germany, may mean one million American lives and twenty billion American dollars," says Mr. Charles Edward Russell, who has just returned from his trip as special investigator for President Wilson on conditions in the new Slav Republic. "What Russia will do," he continues, "is therefore one of the most interesting questions that now confronts the American people."

Mr. Russel himself is very hopeful. He does not believe that the New Russia will desert her allies. The fact that some things go poorly in the government does not surprise him half so much, he says, as the fact that anything goes well. This is particularly true, he thinks of conditions in the army; and he continues to show in his article in Hearst's Magazine, which under the circumstances amounts almost to an official report on these matters, why the breaking down of army discipline was inevitable, and why in spite of the loss of Galicit and Riga and a general demoralization in other sections of the line, the Russian fighting force will come through stronger and better than ever before and play a dominant part in the great offensive which it is an open secret the allies will undertake next spring. These opinions have the value of having been reached through the personal observations of not only a trained student, but of one who by temperament and experience is particularly fitted to judge and appreciate the spirit of the new Russian social democracy.

Auto Trip From St. Cloud to East Coast and Everglades

Dear Editor:—

About two weeks ago a party of five, with the driver, motored to the Everglades, and we had such a fine trip that I want to write andtell you about it so that the readers of the Tribune may know something about that part of the state. We went to Daytona to get started, stayed there over night, going along down by the side of the Halifax river until that flowed into the ocean, and then we followed along the Indian river for a hundred miles or more, always the river and a strip of land between us and the ocean. We found the roads fairly good, some new shell road causing a punctured tire, but through the kindness of a brother motorist that was speedily arranged and we went on our way rejoicing.

To one accustomed to riding through the country in the North, it seemed very strange to see so little of the land under cultivation, and so very few nice houses, just enough of the land had been cultivated to prove to us what the possibilities of Florida for the future might be. We saw thousands of acres of pineapples and the straight, even rows showed up very fine.

On the river side of the road we found oleanders as high as the house, beautiful red hibiscus, a species of red begonia, and century plants all growing wild, and attaining such a rank growth as to almost hide the river at times.

The second night we stayed at Vero, a small town, with good prospects for the future. There we were told that the farming country was not where we could see it from the Dixie Highway, and they told "big" stories about the amount of produce that had been shipped from that section.

We were ferried across the St. Lucie, a wide and very deep river, and some of the party were afraid we might find the bottom of the river before we got across, but we reached the other side in safety and went on our journey. At Jupiter we were very happy in getting a dinner of baked beans, bread and butter, apple pie and a fine cup of coffee, all home-made, for twenty-five cents, at a tea house right on the Dixie Highway. We reached Fort Lauderdale at 4 o'clock, which is in the new county of Broward, being the upper part of the county of Dade. The next morning the mayor of the city and his friend, Mr. Kitchell, took two cars and took our party out to see the city and then took us to the Everglades, where we saw those wonderful feats of engineering, the drainage canals. We also saw the machine that had done the dredging. The road to the Everglades and over into the country was made of crushed rock which had been shipped in. A ditch had been dug,(the dirt thrown into the road and the rock put onto it. The road had been built only sixty days. We were given a great many statistics with regard to the wonderful crops they had raised, but as we did not put them down we have forgotten them. One thing we do recall is that the county is all out of debt and has money in the bank

As we were so near to the great city of Miami (only 25 miles) we decided to go on and see the city for a while, so we drove down to the beach, picked up some shells, and then came onto Ft. Lauderdale, where we stayed all night. In the morning we drove town to the ocean and got some more shells and then started on our homeward journey, driving through the cities of West Palm Beach and [illegible] tea house at Jupiter in time for another one of those famous home dinners. Here we were treated to a launch ride on the Island of Jupiter, where we saw a lighthouse which was built long before the Civil war.

Coming along over the same road again, we reached Vero about dark, and there we remained over night and came along on our homeward journey, reaching New Smyrna about supper time. There we stayed all night and came from there home, after a trip of over eight hundred miles.

There were many times that we saw water on the side of the road from 12 to 15 feet deep, and the mosquitoes, oh! I never saw such a lot of them in my life. As we were coming down from Kissimmee it was a real treat to see the cattle grazing in the fields for we had seen but little land that was dry enough for the cattle to get onto it.

It has been the dream of my life for a great many years to see the Everglades, and I am sure if I were a few years younger I would try the possibilities of that country. That dark, rich soil has everything in it to make fine crops.

I had the finest glass of milk I ever drank, from the cows in the Everglades.

While we enjoyed the trip immeasely and saw a great many beautiful things that we shall never forget, yet three of our party were very glad to get back to St. Cloud, where we could enjoy the beautiful sunshine and the land free from water.

To be sure, we did not enjoy coming down from Kissimmee and getting into the mudholes we found, which was really the worst road we found in all our journey, but we have faith that in time we will have a road that will not cause our hearts to fail us every time we start off on a trip.

Yours for the future of Florida,
FRANCIS R. RILEY.

HEALTHFULNESS WILL BE STRESSED IN ADS

CAMPAIGN OF EXCHANGE IS ALREADY MAPPED OUT.

Copy Prepared by Thomas Is Approved by Directors in Regular Meeting of That Body.

That citrus fruits are "medicine that taste better than food and food more potent than medicine" will be the keynote of this winter's advertising campaign of the Florida Citrus Exchange.

Copy for magazine and newspaper space featuring the food and health value of oranges and grapefruit, prepared by Jefferson Thomas, the advertising agent of the Exchange, was presented and adopted at yesterday's meeting of the board of directors.

This advertising material previously had been favorably acted upon by the advertising committee and endorsed with enthusiasm by Dr. J. H. Ross, the president; F. L. Skelly, general sales manager; C. E. Stewart, Jr., business manager; Directors Gillett and Tilden and others present.

In emphasizing the usefulness of citrus fruits in maintaining strength and preserving health, the Exchange is following up the tenor of its advertising for several years past. In the pasttwo or three seasons the campaign for the education of the public along these lines has had the co-operation and support of the California Fruit Growers.

This year the advocacy of wider consumption of oranges and grapefruit because of their food and health qualities and in order that more solid foods like grains and meat, may be conserved for shipment abroad, has the cordial backing of the United States Food Administration. Magazine and newspaper articles now appearing with the approval of Mr. Hoover and his staff very strongly stress these points and call attention also to the economy an buying citrus fruits at prevailing prices.

To Handle Vegetables.

Arrangements that have been under discussion for several months were finally completed for giving the benefit of the sales machinery of the organization to vegetable growers. It is believed that a large number of these will market their product through the Exchange this season, contracts to this end already having been made in several communities. Wherever practicable, local associations of vegetable growers will be formed, but in other places truck will be handled through the existing bodies of citrus growers—especially where many of the members of these grow both fruit and vegetables.

Other matters connected with the selling plans of the Exchange for the fall and winter season, many of them of a routine nature, occupied the time of the directors at yesterday's meeting. The list of division and district managers for the year was announced by Sales Manager Skelly as finally completed, there having been but few changes. Discussion of the selling charge for the coming year brought out comparisons with the figures of independent and speculative marketing agencies which showed that Exchange growers generally fare considerably better in the matter of net returns for their fruit than do the patrons of these agencies.

STATE CAN PRODUCE

Enough Sugar to Supply at Least Half the People of the United States—One Planting of Cane Yields Seven Profitable Crops.

Editor Herald:—I note an important news paragraph in a recent issue of your paper, and I think it should be reprinted and reread again and again, so that the truth it conveys can have a chance to soak in:

"The Ocala Star truthfully says: Every farmer can make his own sugar if he will—Tampa Tribune. Forty years ago, the present editor of the Herald boarded with various farmers in the northern part of Sumter county, and every one of them made all the sugar rekuired for his family use. They used a process similar to the old-fashioned ash-hopper, which housewives years ago employed in making lye for the manufacture of cheap soap. The farmers also made an abundance of syrup, sweet potatoes, corn, oats, peanuts and pork. They lived at home and toarded at the same place, and their grandchildren, who live in the same locality, can do the same thing that their grandparents did."

Florida is not among the sugar producing states, yet high grade cane is grown in every county. Sugar is now higher priced than at any time since the Civil war. Conditions indicate that it will be higher. Florida is overlooking an opportunity to develop a great business. Parties interested in this subject can find it fully covered in a document entitled The Sugar Industry in Florida, sent free to applicants by Dr. R. E. Rose, state chemist, Tallahassee.

The U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, in its annual report for the year ending June 30, 1917, shows that, in the markets of Continental United States, 4,233,050 tons of sugar were received, which means an average per capita amount of 81 lbs., the largest of any country. The amount available in 1916 was only 78 pounds per capita or 3,980,181 tons. The domestic production was 1,711,626 tons, of which 310,900 was cane and 822,726 beet sugar. Outside of the limits of continental United States, the tonnage received was 3,736,364 tons, valued at $347,674,625. From foreign countries 2,532,426 tons were received and 1,203,938 from insular possessions. Cuba sent 2,344,549 tons, South America 57,184 tons, Japan 10,942 tons, Hawaii 581,303 tons and Porto Rico 488,689 tons. The Philippine Islands sent 133,946 tons.

What do you think of this country importing from the two little islands of Hawaii and Porto Rico—the two combined having one-fifth the area of Florida, but with more population—a quantity of sugar equal to the entire production of the United States? Our state chemist, who has had practical experience in making sugar in Florida, says it can be made as cheaply in our stateas anychere in the world. How long are we going to continue paying tribute to the Japanese, Chinese, Cubans, Spaniards, Portuguese and others in this respect? Why not have sugar mills at Ocala, Tampa, Punta Gorda and other towns in Florida? Sugar is a human necessity. Our people consume more of it than any other, and yet we produce but a small portion of it. Florida and the other Gulf states could be made to supply American needs.

Very truly yours,
L. M. RHODES,

A GUIDE FOR HOME SERVICE WORKERS

The Red Cross department of civilian relief authorizes the following list of "don'ts" for the guidance of home service workers in approaching the dependent families of soldiers:

It is as important to remember the things that ought not to be done as to keep in mind the things that should be done. A number of "don'ts" follow:

Don't overwhelm people with questions before they have had a chance to say what they want to say.

Don't suggest to them the answers that they should make. This is often done unconsciously.

Don't forget that their own hopes and plans are more important than any single fact that the home service worker wants in order to make her report or her record complete.

Don't encourage children to talk about things that concern their elders—about the family difficulties, income and so on.

Don't let the children come tot he office with messages and requests except when there is a real emergency, and no older person can possibly come.

Don't discuss the affairs of a family; don't tell the facts that come to your attention in the course of home service work to any outsider.

Don't give confidential information about the family when making inquiries.

Don't make inquiries of the present neighbors or do anything that will expose the family to gossip. Protect them as you would your own family from anything that would hurt their self-respect.

Don't venture to make permanent plans on a first visit.

Don't fail to discover whether there is immediate and urgent need of relief and to make some temporary provision for supplying it before waiting to make further inquiries.

Don't fail, however, to inquire (before paying the first visit, if possible) what other agencies, including churches, are interested.

GREAT OPPORTUNITIES BEING NEGLECTED.

Florida, particularly the southern part of the state, abounds in many neglected opportunities. It is a matter of surprise that those having money to invest have not long ago availed themselves of the chances offered everywhere in this region to put their capital in enterprises that are sure to bring profitable returns.

A few weeks ago the Herald pointed out one of these chances, viz a fish preserving plant. Fish preserved in various ways find a ready market everywhere in the United States. In every village, town or city in the country we find on sale dried cod, halibut from Massachusetts, pickerel mackerel from Newfoundland, canned salmon from the Pacific coast, sardines, herring and oth- of fish, and right here in Florida many stores have on sale dried fish from the Mediterranian countries.

It is simply ridiculous that, with the splendid opportunities offered by Florida's immense fish supplies, we do not have plants at various points on our twelve hundred miles of sea coast to preserve and place upon the markets of the country tons of the fine food fish abounding in every bay and inlet from Fernandina to Key West and from Key West to Pensacola. What is being done in other states can be done here.

Another golden opportunity which has been demonstrated, but neglected, is the cultivation of sugar cane and the manufacture of syrup and sugar. This, in the opinion of the Herald, is the most attractive, the most reliable of all.

In this section of the state sugar cane need be planted only once in five to seven years. After one planting it continues to flourish for years, or until the stalks become too small for profitable handling. The crop requires but little cultivation and it is never a total loss through seasons unfavorable to other crops. In other words, it is a sure crop, and it can be depended on to yield from each acre at least ten barrels of thirty gallons each of the best table syrup in the world. In this section, this syrup never wholesales for less than sixty cents a gallon nor retails for less than seventy-five cents.

Put up in soda water bottles or in small cans, it sells "like hot cakes," Indeed, in half-pint bottles selling at ten cents each, it will bring a dollar and sixty cents a gallon.

An opportunity is thus offered for a refinery to be located at some central point, say Arcadia, Lakeland, Kissimmee—any one of mere than a hundred places, a central plant to buy all the syrup made by the neighboring farmers; refine and reduce it to a uniform standard, put it up in bottles and cans, and ship it out to a delighted world.

A firm at Cairo, Ga., has been doing this very thing for many years; and, in 1900, it thus utilized ten thousand barrels of syrup. Cairo is not as large a place as Arcadia, and the lands there are not as well adapted to cane culture as those of any South Florida county.

In Southeast Alabama, near the Georgia boundary line, there is a syrup factory whose products, put up in cans, are found on sale in every town in Florida. Now, isn't that ridiculous—that Floridians should buy syrup from Alabama, when they themselves can make enough syrup to supply the whole United States? This Alabama syrup is doubtless on sale in every town over the entire southern states. Are we not enterprising enough to follow this example?

Further, a syrup refining and grading equipment is comparatively inexpensive; it is within the reach of any man of moderate means.

This suggests the opportunities for sugar refineries, such as they have in Louisiana. We have a better cane country than Louisiana. We have land enough to produce sugar sufficient to supply fully half the people of the United States. There is no question about remunerative prices; they are sure, as the cane crop is sure.

Only two things have prevented Florida from becoming long ago a great sugar producing state, viz.: Hamilton Diston's great failure at St. Cloud and the menace of the Claus-Spreckles sugar trust. The latter no longer need be feared, as the federal laws will hold it in check; and as to the former, the failure was not due to the want of cane or any saccharine deficiency in the juice of the cane, but to incompetency on the part of the refinery managers. Cane grown at St. Cloud took the first premium for sugar content at the World's Fair at New Orleans over cane grown in Louisiana and other states.

The Disston failure, which was made known all over the United States, no doubt had the effect of deterring other capitalists from engaging in the manufacture of sugar in Florida. If any one has any doubts as to the possibilities of making sugar at a profit in Florida; if he wishes to know the true story of the Disston failure, he should write to Capt. R. E. Rose, state chemist, Tallahassee,a nd ask for a copy of his pamphlet on this subject.

We had intended to say something in this article about several other splendid opportunities which Florida offers to men having money to invest, but this is already too long. Suffice it to say however, that the fruit and vegetable industries are only two of a hundred or more chances offered for profitable investments in Florida.—Punta Gorda Herald.

DAD ALSO MAKES A SACRIFICE.

A boy's babyhood and youth belong very largely to his mother. His father and he may be the best of pals, but because the father is at work all day, while the mother is at home, there can not be the same intimacy.

It is not until the boy verges on manhood, till he reaches that time in his life when he is ready to play the game with men, that father and son find themselves in a closer relation. The Dad discovers that the "kid" talks his language, and the "kid" learns that Dad is not only Dad but a bully good companion and friend who understands his point of view as no mother, however loving, can hope to understand.

This is the time when father and son plan together on the boy's immediate and more distant future, when they have long smoke-talks and look more deeply into each other's hearts and souls than ever before.

And it is just at this place in their lives that war steps in and separates them. It is just at this period that the nation calls upon the son to serve, and the father to sacrifice.

The mother has had the past, the father gives up the future.

So without belittling the beauty and holiness of the mother's sacrifice, let us speak this brief word for the tearless sacrifice of "Dad."—Palatka Herald.

The draft got most of the slackers and idlers.

THE MAN WHO FAILS.

The man who fails is this sort of a chap
Who is always looking around for a snap;
Who neglects his work to regard the clock;
Who never misses a chance to knock.

He is grouchy and slow when work begins;
When it's time to quit he jokes and grins.
He's always as busy as busy can be
When he thinks the boss is around to see.

He believes that a "pull" is the only way
By which he can ever draw bigger pay;
And he sulks and growls when he sees his plan
Upset by the "push" of another man.

He's on the job when he draws his pay
That done, he soldiers his time away;
While the men who tackle their job with vim,
Keeps pushing and climbing ahead of him.

For the man who fails has himself to blame,
If he wastes his chances and misses his aim;
He'd win if he'd use his hands and wits;
The man who fails is the man who quits.

WHAT THE KAISER KNOWS

The government's food pledge asks very little of the individual American. So little in fact that there is grave danger the individual will overlook the importance of doing that little, day in and day out, over a period, if necessary, of years.

But when the Kaiser heard of this food conservation by individual Americans, he considered the movement such a menace to German victory that he spent large amounts of money and employed large numbers of agents in this country to frustrate it.

What is important enough for the Kaiser to spend time and money to prevent is important enough for every individual American citizen to help to accomplish. Food will win the war; America must supply it.

But it is only by strict, painstaking, daily attention to the government's very modest request that we Americans can insure the success of the war food conservation campaign. Each individual's part is so small as to seem trivial, but the total, if every one does his part, will be tremendous.

The Kaiser knows in his heart that if every one of America's 100 million souls eat a pound less wheat flour a week America will have a badly needed extra 133,000,000 bushels of wheat to ship to its European allies.

He knows that if each of us eat one-third of an ounce less meat fats every day we'll have 395,000 tons more fats a year for the war.

He knows that if each one of us eat an ounce less meat a day we will have 4,400,000 more meat animals every year to feed our allies.

He knows that if each of us eats an ounce less sugar a day we'll have 1,185,000 tons more sugar a year.

He knows that if we American individuals DO save these things, Allied Europe's hungry will be fed and kept contented in the fight against his starving hordes; and that he, therefore, has not a chance to win the war.

He was smart enough to realize that if his agents in this country could sneer the food saving idea out of the individual American's mind he would stand a mighty good chance to win the war.

DON'T LET THE KAISER TALK YOU OUT OF DOING YOUR LITTLE BIT OF FOOD CONSERVATION DUTY EVERY DAY. During the week of October join with the other millions of Americans who by banding together, each perfoming his own part, are going to ensure victory in the world war for democracy.

The Plant City Courier has just rounded out a career of a third of a century. It is one of the cleanest papers in Florida, always full of good reading matter, which includes calm and able editorials and it is doing its bit towards the promotion of every interest of the whole country. It is an 8-page, semi-weekly, and we hope it will not be long before it will be sufficiently prosperous to become a daily.—Punta GordaHerald.

The fishing season is beginning with a rush. The dark waters from the back marshes have kept the salt water down at the mouth, but now that the rains are letting up and the St. Lucie river clears the run is starting in with great success to the fishing boats.—Stuart Messenger.

Hit Old H. C. L. a hard jolt this morning when we got up before daylight, and in time to begin the day's work had caught enough fine fish (mostly speckled perch) to provision the entire office force for the day. Thirty-nine of 'em landed by ye didn't catch all of 'em either. This dose of brain food may show its effects in these columns later.—Lakeland Telegram.

Letters To the Editor

Wilbur Wright Branch,
Dayton, O., Oct. 26, 1917.

Editor Tribune:—

By way of answering the protests of some of the people in St. Cloud I am enclosing check for $1 for the Sammy Tobacco Fund.

I will not say much about the matter. I do not think even the people who signed the protest gave it much thought, but I must add a few things to what has already been said. Of course, I am still in the United States and living in steam-heated barracks and don't suppose I will ever have to endure the hardships and privations that many of our boys in other branches of the servise are exposed to now, however, I have been on guard and have walked post in weather that was far from warm (also cold in Texas) and I can at least imagine some of the things they are enduring.

Tobacco may be, probably is, an injurious habit, but when [illegible] its good effects the bad ones are outdistanced so far as to be practically negligible. For instance, when a man is called up before the company commander for over-staying a pass, missing roll call at reveille (4:45 a. m.) or having forgotten to fix his bunk in exactly the correct manner, a good cigarette before and after makes his sentence seem much lighter.

Leaving all jokes aside, I can imagine no greater calamity could befall our army than to be suddenly deprived of tobacco and as I am an inveterate smoker, and have gone through the ordeal of quitting it several times, I know what I am talking about.

As nearly as I can find out, the boys in France can get cigarettes there, but they are so far inferior to our own as to be only an aggravation and I must assure you that the boys there appreciate a smoke from home more than anything else that could be sent them.

I hope you will print this in the Tribune, and I would like to see all the names that were on the "protest," in your paper again, only with the sums they have contributed toward the Sammy Tobacco Fund appearing beside the names.

I am not sure I will ever go to France and therefore am not speaking for myself, but I am surely sorry for the boys who are there, and will be there, and I think that the ones who are still at home should show their appreciation and furnish them with what they want, not what we THINK they NEED.

The government furnishes us enough to eat and wear to keep us from starving or freezing, so I would advise every one who would help the soldiers and make their stay in a foreign country seem shorter, to contribute to the tobacco fund.

With best regards to yourself and all my friends, I am

Very truly yours,
Corp. P. W. VanNatta.

Chikalis, Wash., Oct. 24, 191.

Editor Tribune:—

On my return to Chikalis, after several weeks visit to Seattle, Tacoma and Olympia, I found several copies of your paper, also National Tribune. It is useless to say that I was very much interested in reading in the Tribune of August 30, 1917, your correspondent's account of the Mobile campaign. Itis fairly accurate. In regard to who was first on the works your correspondent says it is a much mooted question. I thought that question was settled many years ago in the National Tribune. The Cincinnati Commercial of that time stated that the flag of the 11th Wisconsin regiment was the first planted on the works. I was in that charge on Sunday evening, April 9th, 1865, and I can truthfully say that we had captured all the rebels on our front before any of General Steele's men, either white or black, got much over half-way to the works. They had twice the distance to charge over that we had. It took our regiment just six minutes to get there.

If there is any one in St. Cloud who knows of any regiment in the charge on Fort Blakeley, who got to the forts or breastworks in less time than six minutes, let him name the regiment. I was in the Wonder City in 1910-11. I own property there, but it is too far from this, the Lord's country, for me to visit you as often as I would like to.

I am a reader of your valuable paper, having subscribed for it through the National Tribune several months before it was issued in St. Cloud.

Yours in F. C. & L.
JOHN DEVER,
Ex-member of Co. H, 11th Regt. Wis. Veteran Volunteer Infantry.

The success we have had and the confidence we have in Tanlac makes us ambitious to supply a larger territory and sell more Tanlac this year than last. If you haven't heard of this great remedy and the remarkable cures it has made write us and let us tell you what it has done for others. We pay the postage and will mail you a beautiful calendar.

A correspondent in the Tampa Times tells of the shipment of the first lot of dasheens from Crystal Springs to New York, there being five barrels in the order. Perhaps the dasheen growers in the St. Cloud section could profit by looking up a market and increasing the acreage here.

Comrade Andrew J. Fairchild, of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., arrived in St. Cloud last Monday for his first visit to the city, but declares that he has come here to stay for all time. He is delighted with the climate in this section, having left heavy snow and ice in the northern part of the lake regions of Michigan, when he headed for the land of sunshine and the Wonder City.

The street gangs under Commissioner Washburn are doing some good work cutting weeds along the streets of the city, which should encourage the property owners to clean up the lots and lawns around their homes. It looks much better to see the streets clear of weeds and grass and it will improve the appearance of the whole city if every property owner or tenant will make the adjoining properties as attractive.

Mrs. Lana Amy Walter, president oif the Rebekah Assembly of Florida, visited Benevolent Lodge No. 23 Saturday, October 27th. This was her official visit and she expressed much pleasure at her reception and the evident good feeling shown among the members, proving they lived up to the principles of the order. One candidate was initiated. This was a special meeting for the purpose of meeting the state president.

G. W. Penn announced to the Tribune that he expects to know within a few days how many buildings he will erect on his lots at the corner of Tenth and Pennsylvania avenue, being of the opinion that he will sell two lots on the Tenth street side, next to the Cheesman building, and erect three buildings facing on Pennsylvania. He is waiting to hear what decision is reached by the Postoffice Department with regard to the location of the postoffice.

Comrade Henry A. Grimm, of Florida avenue, evidently reads the ads in the Tribune very closely, for on last Friday he took himself over to Kissimmee and visited the Osceola Motor Co. and came home with a new Ford. It is a 1918 model, and a beauty. The Osceola Motor Co. are placing many of these new Fords in the St. Cloud section through the medium of the Tribune's columns. Mr. and Mrs. Grimm expect to make a trip to Daytona tomorrow in their new Ford.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Ryan left Wednesday evening for Sanford, where Mr. Ryan will open a furniture business. Mr. Ryan's brother will continue to operate the business here.

Comrade J. H. Richardson has just shown his faith in St. Cloud by purchasing another 5-acre tract just east of the city and started clearing for the purpose of making a truck farm. Mr. Richardson came here several months ago after reading the Tribune, and has purchased several pieces of property since his arrival.

Through an oversight we failed to state last week in the article announcing the show "Rebecca of Sunny Brook Farm," at Kissimmee, that the date was November 2. Tomorrow night the show will be given as announced elsewhere in this issue.

In this issue will be found the legal notice of assessments to property owners abutting on the brick streets, as levied by the city council. The total assessments as listed show $12,949.76 that will be collected from the property owners, which being two-thirds would bring the cost of the total up to $19 - 424.64. The ordinance states that the engineer's estimated cost of the work was $17,697.58, which is evidently not correct figures as a total, when it is figured on a basis of the amount assessed to the property owners.

Spooks were everywhere about last night, but no harm was done to either person or property within the city, so far as could be learned. Hallowe'en passed off in the proper manner, everybody, old and young, having their fill of fun in the proper spirit.

Invitations have been sent out to the marriage of Solon Brower and Mrs. Lucy E. Vanderpool, to occur this afternoon, at 2 o'clock, at the Brower residence, 218 Michigan avenue. Both have many friends in the city who will be pleasantly surprised to receive this announcement.

The Rebekah entertainment given at the G. A. R. Hall last Monday evening was a success from every viewpoint. There was a large attendance and everybody had a good time, the order netting a neat sum for the benefit of their treasury. The entertainment was pleasing in every manner and deserves credit to the members of the Rebekahs who planned and carried out the affair.

Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Ettenger, of Trenton, N. J., arrived in St. Cloud Tuesday for their first visit to the city. They are stopping at the home of E. E. Eley, on New York avenue, and will probably remain for the winter.

Capt. and Mrs. D. C. Cope arrived home Tuesday from an extended trip to points in Alabama and Georgia. They went up by automobile, but sold their car and returned on the train. They report a delightful trip and while away visited Camp Sheridan, where their son is in training with Uncle Sam's soldiers. They were accompanied home by Mr. and Mrs. Cole, who have taken up their residence in their new home here, having been on their way from New York when they joined Mr. and Mrs. Cope for the remainder of the journey to the Wonder City.

Conserve food by eating fish. Price reduced now. Can buy large quantities cheaper and will give the consumer the benefit. D. L. Smith, N. Y. Ave. 10-1t

Mr. and Mrs. Adam McGill celebrated his 80th birthday Wednesday, at the home of his son, Anson McGill. His daughter, Mrs. Minnie Johnson, was among those present. Dinner was served for a merry party.

Dr. and Mrs. A. Huntsinger, of Mishauwaka, Ind., arrived in St. Cloud last Friday for their first visit to the city, and have taken up their residence in a cottage near Eleventh street and Ohio avenue for the winter. Mr. Huntsinger is a brother of our fellow townsman and comrade, Isaac Huntsinger, and is a noted prohibition lecturer of the Hoosier state.

WEST END NOTES

Morris Gregory, wife and wife's sister, Mrs. Olive Huggins, of Elmira, N. Y., arrived in St. Cloud Thursday, October 25th, and put up with A. S. Cole on California avenue for a few days. They rented rooms on Indiana avenue and Eleventh street. Mr. Gregory served in Company I, 141st N. Y. Vols. It is their first visit to Florida and they like the climate and St. Cloud very well. They come to spend the winter.

Mrs. Payne and Mrs. Thomason, of the West End, attended the Baptist convention in Kissimmee last Thursday, the 25th.

Comrade Joppy, of Jersey avenue and Twelfth street, has bought and cleaned up a new lot and put up a new garage.

Mr. Peterson, of Dakota avenue, has moved to the country on a farm, and now we may look forf plenty of vegetables and "taters" in the spring market.

Comrade Graham, of Tennessee avenue and Fifteenth street, has sold out and will return to the National Soldiers' Home at Johnston City, Tenn.

Capt. E. F. Tucker and wife, of Greensburg, Ky., will return to St. Cloud in a few days to again pass another winter. They have a nice little home on Jersey avenue.

The real estate mortgage is the oldest of all investments. Money we know to have been lent on mortgage as long ago as 2,000 years before Christ.

MARY PICKFORD IN SUNNYBROOK FARM

Nation-Wide Successful Movie to be Staged at Kissimmee Friday

Mary Pickford is known the world over to lovers of artistic moving pictures, and her success in Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" appears to have surpassed all other efforts at pleasing an anxious public with sentimental plays on the screen.

Through the efforts of Mr. J. D. Woodbeck, who recently took over the Casino theatre at Kissimmee, the films for "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," with Mary Pickford as the star, have been procured for Friday afternoon and evening, and Mr. Woodbeck extends an invitation to the picture loving public of St. Cloud to take in this rare treat. The matinee will be given at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and the regular night program, starting at 7 o'clock, will be followed by the Mary Pickford pictures at 15c, thus giving the double show for one price. The admission fee will be 15c and 25 cents.

"Rebecca Breaks All Records at Dayton, Ohio

Mary Pickford carried Dayton, O., by storm on her recent appearance there in Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm. The Columbia theatre, at which this great Arteraft picture was shown, was packed from pit to dome at every showing. C. J. Gross, manager of the Columbia theatre, has this to say regarding the production:

"'Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm' I consider a 'knock-out' and the best picture Mary Pickford has ever appeared in. The Arteraft Pictures Corporation must be congratulated and should never maintain this high standard in their future releases their success is a foregone conclusion."

Hundreds of persons waited in line at the box office for a chance to see the picture and on several occasions many had to be turned away, as standing room was at a premium.

MUSICAL STUDIO LATE ADDITION TO ST. CLOUD

EXPERIENCED TEACHER OF INSTRUMENTATION READY FOR CLASSES AND WILL ALSO FURNISH MUSIC

The latest addition to St. Cloud's social and business life, is the studio opened by Mrs. Gertrude Sanford, in the Clyde building, where lessons will be given on the piano, mandolin, or other stringed instruments, and music will also be furnished for all occasions by Mrs. Sanford, according to announcement.

Mrs. Sanford is among the recent arrivals in St. Cloud and has extraordinary talent and ability as a musician and has had five years practical experience with orchestra work. She has studied for twelve years at the conservatories in Boston, New York, and other large cities, and has rendered musical programs in Providence, R. I., New York City and Boston, that have proven her mastery of the technique and harmony that is necessary to a successful career of a musician.

The studio opened in the Clyde will accommodate classes on any kind of stringed instrument, several of our young people having already enrolled for instruction.

One of the new ideas brought to the city by Mrs. Sanford is that of the Hawaiian steel guitar, which has been popular for several months in northern states, and because of its popularity elsewhere the people of St. Cloud will be given an opportunity to hear these instruments in orchestra work.

The addition of this studio will add much to the social and home life of St. Cloud, since there are many promising young musicians in our midst that need only the expert instruction that can be secured in this studio, now open for classes.

HALLOWE'EN SOCIAL

Last Friday evening the Epworth League of the Methodist church held a social in the church parlors. It was a Hallowe'en social. The decorations were of jack-o-lanterns and pumpkin faces, golden rod and daisies. At 7:30 the guests arrived and such a crowd they had; there were over fifty in attendance, the largest number ever present at any of these gatherings. To create a mirthful feeling and put everybody in a good humor the first game played was the "musical chair," and Evadna Harris succeeded in winning the last seat. Mr. Dr. Wing acted as the Fortune Teller "Zella," and those in their teens to the grown-ups are now somewhat wiser as to their futures. On the wall was pinned a piece of muslin on which was drawn a belfrey tower. Each one was blindfolded and led towards the tower and turned around three times and then given a paper bell and directed to proceed to the tower and put the bell in the belfry. From the appearance of the results the entire piece of muslin was pointed out as the "exact" spot where the bell belonged. Van Ricketts and Lee Hedrick came the nearest of pinning their bells to the right spot. On the table in the center of the room were placed six lighted candles, then the guests were blindfolded again and after being turned around three times, directed to blow out the candles. The number of candles remaining lighted represented the number of years you would have to wait before getting married. Fleda Doolittle blew in the wrong direction and the consequence was only one candle went out, leaving five representing the number of years yet to wait. Refreshments of apples and ginger cookies were served, and how good they were. Kathleen Goff and her assistants deserve a wonderful amount of praise for the success of this entertainment, for it was well planned, and the guests certainly did enjoy themselves.

A NEW USE FOR AN OLD ART

The presenting of styles in dry point etching is the latest innovation in fashion illustration. In the November issue of Harper's Bazar are two examples of work in this medium by Miss E. M. A. Steinmetz. Both show designs from Callot of Paris, one being an evening frock made from models secured by a New York importer direct from the atelier of Callot Soeurs.

Dry point etching is one of the most difficult mediums known. The artist draws with a steel stylus, called a burin, directly on a copper plate. The stylus cuts into the copper surface and the depth of its lines governs the blackness or lightness of the reproduction. This means that an artist working in dry point must have a very sure hand, for not a line once made can be effaced. With pen and ink, brush or pencil, mistakes can be rectified or eliminated. But with dry point etching the artist cannot make mistakes. One slip means that the entire plate is ruined.

So far as is known, Miss Steinmetz is the first fashion artist to employ, and Harper's Bazar the first magazine to publish, fashions illustrated in dry point etching.

Whatever else happens, this war threatens to make ducks and drakes of the divine right of kings.

VETS ASSOCIATION

The association met with good attendance October 27th, at 2 p. m., President Kenney called for order and the opening song, "America," was sung. Prayer by Chaplain Beauchamp. Another song by the choir. Secretary's report read and received. Invitaton for all old and new comrades to take a seat on the rostrum. Mr. Frank Redd, the new attorney and native of Florida, 32 years of age, was the first introduced, and he gave a good talk on his ups and downs, from instructing the young idea how to shoot, and in the meantime studied law and filled various other positions. He eulogized the old veterans for their valor and sacrifice in days passed to establish a free and independent country.

W. H. Croft, a newcomer from the North, got too full of patriotism to talk.

Comrade N. B. Yarwood, of Cook, Neb., 42nd Ill. Vols., said he did not expect to see so many old veterans in St. Cloud. He said he and wife would remain all winter.

Comrade Robertson was glad to return to St. Cloud and gave a talk on his visit in the North and closed with a few war reminders.

D. W. Perry, a new arrival, said this was his first visit to St. Cloud and he like the climate and would remain all winter.

L. W. Fox, a newcomer, was glad to be where he would not have to shovel coal all winter.

L. F. Johnson, a new arrival, was no speaker, but was willing to do his duty otherwise. He and wife were glad to be with the people of St. Cloud for the winter.

D. W. Turley, of Sedalia, Mo., Co. G, 32nd O. Vols., was glad to be in St. Cloud and to remain for the winter.

President announced a meeting at the Christian church, beginning Tuesday, October 30, conducted by Rev. J. C. Reed. Everybody is invited to attend.

There were several other announcements, the dates of which run out before this journal is in print.

The St. Cloud yell came off for the good of new and old arrivals.

The collection amounted to $3.24, including a picture and two books presented by Rev. Beauchamp.

The social program committees for November were named as follows:

First, W. L. Lynch.
Second, Emma Hart.
Third, the W. C. T. U.
Fourth, Bertha Cathcart.

The social program was taken up by Comrade Beauchamp, who introduced Brother King of the Baptist church. Brother King gave a long talk on Abraham and Bible characters.

Brother H. H. Bowen, pastor of the M. E. church, gave a good talk on the "Chronic Knockers."

Song by the choir, " The Bone-Dry Florida."

Piano solo by Miss Edith Herrod; also a song called "The Battles of the Nations," which was well rendered by Miss Harrod.

The names of the different parts of this fine music the secretary failed to note in a legible hand, therefore can not report it now. Parties who have the social program in charge should have all names written in plain hand and program written in full if they expect a full report by the secretary.

New and old arrivals who take part in the Veterans' Association should have their name, company and regiment, and wherefrom they hail, handed to the secretary in order to render full credit to all who take part.

Song, Star Spangled Banner, and adjournedto meet November 3, at 2 p. m.

BRITAIN'S HERO

A London schoolmaster named Wiman, who enlisted and lost an arm and a leg in France, returned to teaching after his recovery and became the idol of his students.

The discipline among members of his class was perfect, the boys enforcing it among themselves. Finally, after the authorities discovered him to be a better teacher than ever, the school arranged for an exhibition hearing of one of his history lessons. At this exhibition Wiman asked:

"Now, boys, who is the greatest, outstanding British military hero of all time?"

The boys instantly stood, cheered three times and shouted in chorus, "Mr. Wiman."

BIG RESULTS FROM DIMES

The sportive dime and the nimble nickel are the little tools that have made big things in trade. The four biggest firms in the United States, doing a business of nearly $150,000,000 a year, depend on nickels and dimes. There are four five and ten cent stores in this country that made last year sales of $87,000,000 from nickels and dimes.

time to remain as a voting member of the commission. The town, of course, was properly indignant and mass meetings were held with the result that in a few days the manager withdrew, after which the commission compromised on the selection of the local postmaster, who had no special claims for fitness for the job, beyond good political connections, but who nevertheless is said to have proceeded to do well. Since this episode Corrado has been indicted for murder.

Proportional representation takesto guarantee to every citizen that he will have somebody of his own kind at the city hall to represent him. In achieving this purpose the Hare plan used in Ashtabula is unquestionably more scientific than the ordinary method, and its advocates have nothing to apologize for in Ashtabula. The tough element of a town is entitled to its due share of representation. But this first American demonstration of the plan in Ashtabula was almost too perfect.

THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND MOTOR CARS USED ON BATTLE FRONTS

The Citrus Industry of Florida of Greater Importance Than Ever

All good things develop their full measure of usefulness through periods of stress and struggle. Even civilization itself attains its advances by means of trials and tribulations. Today the world is wrung with the misery of war that tomorrow mankind may enjoy the blessings of freedom.

Florida has had her share of troubles. Like the fabled Phoenix which rose triumphant from its ashes, the State has emerged from every catastrophe stronger than ever before. Today she is greater and of more usefulness to humanity than at any previous period of her existence, contributing to the welfare of the Nation in more ways than is the privilege of any other State.

The citrus industry has been of greater importance than any other in the development of Florida. Oranges and grapefruit have brought vast sums of money into the State and have given full value received to those who have bought and consumed them, in food value and health conservation. Never was there a time when citrus culture deserved more consideration.

Soundness and Stability Demonstrated—the Future of Citrus Growing is Assured

From every temporary reverse that has visited the citrus inoustry of Florida, it has come forth bigger and better. And as there has come about a diversification of the production of the State, benefiting her people by widening the field of their usefulness, the dominant importance of the citrus grove has been made more evident.

There has been in the past few years greatly increased planting of staple crops and much attention to livestock raising. All of this is of vast benefit to Florida as a whole. But let us not overlook the past performance of the citrus industry, which has brought into the State untold millions of dollars. The orange and grapefruit grove still offers a most promising form of investment.

Health Department Warns Police of Dangers

On July 9 Alphonse La Verdure, 71 years old, residing at 498 West 124 th Street, was bitten on the right finger by a stray dog in Edgwater, N. J. The dog was killed by a policeman and that was apparently the end of the matter. No attempt was made to determine whether or not the dog was rabid.

On August 20 Mr. LaVerdure visited the Department of Health, complaining of pain and tingling in the bitten finger. As forty-two days had already elapsed since the bite, it was decided not to institute Pasteur treatment, inasmuch as this would be clearly contradicted if the pain and tingling were the beginning symptoms of rabic infection. The patient was placed under observation, and on August 23 was admitted o the Willard Parker hospital undoubtedly suffering from rabies. He died three days later.

There is little doubt that the prompt treatment of the finger bite, including cauterization and Pasteur treatment, would have prevented the tragic ending here recorded. Such treatment doubtless would have been applied had the bite occurred in New York City, for then the Department of Health would have examined the brain of the dog killed by the police officer.

In this vicinity, whenever a police officer kills a dog known to have bitten any person, or suspected of having rabies, he notifies the Department of Health of that fact. Following this, he dog's carcass is sent to the Research Labaoratory for examination. If this discloses the presence of rabic infection, a telephone message is sent to the police department, which at once sends out a patrolman to visit all the persons bitten, in order to acquaint them with the serious nature of the bite and with the facilities offered by the Department of Health for administering scientific treatment. There is no doubt whatever that this simple but effective cooperation between the police and health authorities has done much to prevent human rabic infections in this city.—New York City Health Bulletin.

ELECTRICAL TRADE OF CANADA IS LARGELY STIMULATED BY THE WAR

Reports were prevalent a few weeks ago that the entry of the United States into the war in Europe had stimulated to a considerable degree electrical trade with Canada. While such reports may have been true for other manufacturing industries, a careful investigation has disclosed no material increase in electrical exports to Canada. In fact, in some instances it was found that America's entry into the war was a signal for decreasing trade. A number of projects were scheduled for development shortly, but simultaneously with the entrance of America into the war these plans were either abandoned or postponed indefinitely.

Of course, it must not be lost sight of of that some of the larger American manufacturers have established Canadian factories or have connections in Canada in which they have substantial interests, whereby goods of Canadian manufacture, but identical in design with American goods, are marketed in Canada. These plants, which are largely financed by American capital, and buy probably most of their raw materials from the United States, have been established in Canada as a means to compete in the Canadian market without the necessity of having to pay import duty.

BRITAIN'S EFFORT IN WAR

Behold the splendid effort of Great Britain. She has raised an army of 5,500,00 and furnished 500,000 men for the navy. In very large measure she has financed the war operations of the British dominions and all allied countries. She has kept the seas open for allied and neutral shipping. She has loaned nearly 2,000,000 tons of shipping to her allies and is constructing new shipping at a remarkably rapid rate. When the war broke out the mother country had between 17,000,000 and 18,000,000 tons of ocean-going shipping. In spite of the submarine campaign she still has over 17,000,000 tons in operation, and to this tonnage she will add 4,000,000 tons of newly constructed vessels during the coming year.—Toronto News.

ST. CLOUD FLORIDA

FLORIDA FOR CATTLE

Recognizing the prime importance of the cattle industry in Florida just at this time, the Tribune considers anything timely and pertinent that tends to convince the people that they should get away from the old happy-go-lucky way of conducting the cattle business. The large and increasing demand for more cattle and the absolute need for an increase in the meat supply of the country is patent to all, therefore the following article in a recent issue of the Times-Union should be of more than usual interest to Tribune readers.

"The freedom of Florida cattle from numerous pests and parasites, which are a source of considerable trouble in Texas, was one of the wonders to the Texas cattle men, who recently visited Florida to look over the conditnos and advise progressive cattlemen in this state how to develop the livestock industry.

W. N. Waddell, of Fort Worth, ranch owner, banker, and four times president of the Texas Livestock Commission, was very optimistic about the opportunities for developing the cattle the former cattle tick strongholds in tions as nature has provided in Florida.

He said: "The Texas newspaper men have dubbed be 'the man who put the tick in politics.' At any rate, we 've've been taking considerable territory from demonstrated by some herds we visited that state, and I am glad to learn that the cattle men are awakening to the necessity for eradicating the ticks from Florida.

But, in addition to the cost of raising cattle fever ticks in the quarantined section of Texas, all portions of the range country have to pay out large sums of money, which really are a tax on the cattle industry for contending with numerous pests and parasites which are unknown in Florida. For instance, the screw worms, and ear tick cause heavy losses in our herds so any one can figure the advantage Florida has over Texas.

"Florida is wasting appreciably enough good pasturage to produce a great supply to feed several states, by controlling the quality of the herds of the little native cattle we saw on the ranges. True, we saw lots of cattle, more than I supposed existed in the entire state, but the opportunity before the cattle men is to breed up the quality and size. That this can be done was are branding a larger proportion of and the reports on those herds show that this is a better cattle breeding country than Texas, for your owners that sheep are not more generally handed to breeding cows in herd than we are able to get.

"I recently handled a loan for diversified live stock operations on land where 100 sections will not produce as much grass as any one section of your range country.

"One of the drawbacks in Florida is lack of proper laws for protection of loans on cattle. In reality, no one is justified on making a loan on cattle in this state under present laws. I understand that a few loans have been made, based more on the reliability of the borrower, than in the equity in the transaction.

"There is no reason why cattlemen should not make dividends on investments while breeding up the quality of their herds, for this is a great cattle country. I can not draw on my imagination for a better cattle breeding country than the ranges I have seen in Florida

"I am very much surprised to see that sheep are notmore generally handled on the ranges with the cattle. The absence of coyotes makes sheep raising particularly attractive and they will not injure the cattle ranges. We handle large numbers of sheep and cattle together, although our ranges are not nearly so good as those in Florida." Fellsmere Tribune.

THANKS AND GOOD-BYE

To the People of St. Cloud:—

Owing to my wife's health I am compelled to leave Florida, so I have sold my news business, and it has been moved to the Clyde, where you can find all the latest papers and magazines. You will receive the best of service. My stay in St. Cloud for the last six years has been very pleasant. I have had some very good times and I want to thank all those who have bought papers and magazines of me and also every one who traded with me in the Delicatessen. I would also like for you to give my successor a good portion of your trade and I am sure they will merit it. Here is good-bye, and wishing you all health and wealth.

I am, yours truly,

C. V. KENNEY.

A NEW FLORIDA SONG

(By A. Snowbird.)

Where, oh where, do the soft winds blow;
Where do the buds bloom gay,
When Ohio is wrapt in snow?
It is in Florida!

When northern waters turn to ice,
Till fish refuse to play;
The climate still is very nice
Down here in Florida!

We are outbathing in the lakes
In such a pleasant way;
While you turn blue with Arctic shades
Too far from Florida!

Chorus:
Oh, Florida! Sweet Florida!
Your sky is deep and blue:
Your liquid border white doth lay
A sheen of splendor too.

Why not take a rubberneck peep
Out of your frosty gray,
Than to you take a suite right away
To see dear Florida!

The bees fill honeycomb down South,
In one eternal May;
Till water runs out of your mouth,
To think of Florida!

Elated frogs sing with the birds,
In every marsh and bay;
And seem to say in plain, glad words:
Come down to Florida!

Our sunshine rules cold winter out—
It will not let him stay;
It is because his home, no doubt,
Is north of Florida!

No short crop season here befalls,
And four crops some times pay,
While all the year hang golden balls
In citrus Florida!

We whistle in our thin shirt sleeves,
Off in mid-winter day;
So glad to be one who believes
In balmy Florida!

—Spencer F. Moore.

A. N .U. SOCIAL

The Auxiliary to the Army and Navy Union gave a social and entertainment in the Moose Home. Opened with singing of "America" by audience. Prayer by Rev. Kenney. Solo by Mrs. Bert Gessford, "After the Day." Duet by Mrs. Jacques and Mrs. Vreeland, "Sweet Chiming Bells." Song by Mrs. Houston and Mrs. Francher, "Juanita." Reading by Mrs. Vreeland, "Comrade, Come When You're Called." Solo by Jane Warner, with Mrs. Barber accompanist, "A Garland of Old-Fashioned Roses;" Encore, "A Dream." A reading by Mrs. Dorothy Jacques, "The Marriage," also "The Letter to a Cousin," very comical. Reading by Mrs. Francher, "The Soldier's Life."

The closing song was "Marching Through Georgia."

A social time was enjoyed by all. Coffee and cake were served by the ladies, and about 100 were in attnedance.

HALLOWE'EN SOCIAL FOR THE RED CROSS

The very large gathering at the St. Cloud Hotel on Tuesday evening to celebrate Hallowe'en, shows the great popularity that has been attained by the regular Monday entertainments for the benefit of the Auxiliary to the Red Cross Association. The hostesses, the Misses Doolittle, on this occasion, must be especially praised for the very handsome manner in which the reception rooms were decorated with appropriate panels and paintings, and the success of the evening was largely due to their energetic efforts.

There were spooks and goblins and bogies galore, to say nothing of the cute little witch whose occupation was telling fortunes in the corner, and who certainly had plenty of customers. The costumes were grotesque and the cause of very much merriment, and the antics cut up by all amused the crowd immensely. The black cat had a good many cars attached to it but Pete, the contractor, was the star actor in this regard. The small boys had quite a contest in bobbing for floating apples and some of them nearly choked in their anxiety to catch the floating beauties. The door keeper with a clammy hand was decidedly spooky and certainly suggestive of what was to be expected inside. Mrs. Gibbs' music was much appreciated as were also the popular songs sung by the young people. The receipts for the evening, taken at the door, were $15.10, and the fortune teller's corner netted $3.47.

The success of this entertainment has given the Red Cross Association much encouragement and they propose hereafter to have at least one good social evening every month. Arrangements are being made to put on a program at the G. A. R. Hall on November 12th, and for this occasion a full hall is assured. This will be one of the very best entertainments of the season.

The hostesses for next Monday's meeting will be Mrs. Rush, Mrs. Frost and Mrs. Bracey.
